the names of all who filed these pledges with me and I kept no record of it. I filed all the corrupt practice act pledges that were left with me with the County Clerk.

As to Mrs. Jolly Amorette Byers, Clifford Byers, W. B. (Bill) Ruggles and Tom Middlebrooks I would not say that they did not file their corrupt practice act pledges with me. Neither can I say that they did file it with me. I just don't remember who all did file with me, but I do know that I filed all of the corrupt practice act pledges that were left with me with the County Clerk.

There are two (2) pledges to be filed by a candidate. One (1) is the party loyalty pledge which is required by the rules of the Democratic Party and which should be filed with the Secretary of the County Democratic Central Committee. The other is the corrupt practice act pledge which is required by law, known as the corrupt practice act, and which became a law in 1913, and which should be filed with the County Clerk.

Some of the candidates requested me to prepare a corrupt practice act pledge for them to sign, which I did, and they signed it. But inasmuch as it is not my duty as Secretary of the Committee to handle the corrupt practice act pledge, the law specifically requiring that such pledge be filed with the County Clerk, I made no record of those who did file with me, and I was merely acting as an accommodation to them.

Telephone Call

closed doors in New York about the honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, a New York City dentist whom McCarthy has described as a Fifth Amendment Communist.

In a second call from Stevens to McClellan on Feb. 21, Stevens said "I certainly appreciate the way you, Sen. Symington and Sen. Jackson have viewed this thing." McClellan Symington and Jackson are the Democrats on the McCarthy subcommittee.

Stevens on this day said he did not want to appear to be requesting an appearance before the McCarthy subcommittee in the Zwicker issue but he would be glad to appear if asked.

Stevens said he hoped sessions could be deferred until Sen. Symington (D-Mo) returned from a trip to Europe. He also said he felt any hearings on the controversy should be public.

Stevens pictured Sen. Mundt (R-SD), acting chairman of the subcommittee for the current hearings, as "very much distressed" over reports of abuse of Zwicker. Stevens added Mundt was anxious to see the record of the Zwicker hearings.

Stevens during the conversation, said parts of the record of the Zwicker hearing had been deleted. McClellan suggested that Stevens ask the official reporter for a full record. Stevens said he had affidavits as to what happened, but wanted to give them to the subcommittee and not the press.

Also read into the record was another monitored call between McClellan and Stevens, March 1, in which the senator said he was "surprised when you got off over there with that gang without anybody with you."

This appeared to be a reference to the now famous "chicken luncheon" between Stevens and Republican members of the McCarthy subcommittee at which a memorandum of understanding was reached.

McClellan told Stevens his remarks "ave not critical" adding: "We were left out of it."

McClellan also told Stevens he took the position that it was "a Republican quarrel."

Ike's Flexible Farm Plan to Be Rebuffed

WASHINGTON, (UP) — President Eisenhower faced almost certain rebuff today as the House Agriculture committee met to vote on the future level of government price guarantees for farmers.

The administration wants to put into operation next year a flexible plan under which price supports could be lowered for wheat, cotton, corn peanuts and rice.

But backers of this plan conceded they were hopelessly outnumbered in the committee. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said yesterday that he didn't see "any indication" of the committee approving a bill along administration lines.

"If it is in a form not acceptable to the administration," he continued, "there is just not apt to be any new law and the flexible provisions of existing law would go into effect."

Knowland's statement suggested the possibility of a presidential veto at which Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson also hinted. The house farm bill hopes Janzen Knitting Mills, Evansville, Ind., will be enough to cause legislation in its farm bill however.

Ashdown Businessman Is Killed

By The Associated Press

Three accidental shootings, a double drowning and two traffic fatalities yesterday brought to 15 the number of violent deaths in Arkansas for the week ended at midnight Sunday.

An Ashdown businessman and his wife were killed last night when their car crashed through a bridge railing and plunged 25 feet into Bull Creek near Ashdown.

They were Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Routon, Routon, 62, operated a dry goods store at Ashdown.

Rupert Flournoy 11-year-old son of a Negro farm family, was shot to death accidentally at his home near Stuttgart last night. Coroner Russell McCollum said the victim and his 10-year-old brother, Clarence, were playing with guns when one of them discharged.

The boys' parents were not at home at the time of the shooting.

Memphis State Turns Away Negroes

Memphis (AP) — Five Negroes tried to enter Memphis State College today. They were not accepted.

The students went to the college after an early morning conference with the Rev. Van J. Malone president of the Memphis branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and James F. Estes, NAACP attorney.

Estes had said previously the NAACP will go to court if the Negroes were turned down.

The Negroes appeared in line with about 200 students waiting to register for the summer term. There were no incidents.

R. P. Clark, registrar, told the five he could not accept them until he gets instructions from the state Board of Education.

Memphis State President L. M. Smith said he had instructed the registrar "not to accept applications from Negroes. My position will remain unchanged until the Supreme Court decides when and how its decision banning segregation in public schools is to be carried out."

The Negroes seeking admission included Elijah Noel 30, Memphis post office clerk. A veteran of six years service in World War II and the Korean War, he is a graduate of high school at Marion, Ark.

The house committee is composed largely of midwest Republicans and Southern Democrats from farming areas who are committed in this election year to vote for continuance of the rigid high price props which expire after this year's crops are marketed.

The big issue facing the committee as it began drafting a "catch-all" farm bill was how long present high supports should be continued. Most Democrats were backing a three-year extension. Republicans generally favored a one-year extension and figured they had the votes to win.

Trouble Traced to Mother's Family

HAZEN (AP) — The mother of an Arkansas midshipman whose Navy commission is being held up for a security check, today traced her son's trouble to her family.

But she charged that the extended security check is unjustified.

Mrs. Paul Shimok Sr., mother of Paul Shimok of Hazen, said she is a native of Siberia and she thinks that is the base of her son's security difficulty with the Navy.

Young Shimok 22, is one of three midshipmen whose commissions are being held back. All three of them graduated Friday.

Bidault and Molotov Fail to Agree

GENEVA (AP) — French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Russian's Vyacheslav M. Molotov were reported by French sources to have had a "useful" exchange of views today on supervision of the proposed Indo-China cease-fire.

The two met 50 minutes in what was described as "a cordial atmosphere," but were unable to reach an agreement on composition of a commission to police the cease-fire.

The French were reported, however, to have come around to the Soviet position that at least one Communist nation would have to be included in the supervisory agency. Molotov was reported to have insisted upon this as a minimum.

French sources said Bidault now believes something can be worked out by taking three Asian nations—possibly India, Pakistan and Ceylon—as a base and adding one Communist country and one Western nation to far the commission.

Bidault was understood to have told Molotov he was firmly opposed to any commission on which the Communists and non-Communists would be evenly divided, such as the Neutral Nations Supervision Commission in Korea. This body consists of representatives of Switzerland, Sweden, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Bidault also opposed supervision by a mixed French-Vietminh commission unless such a body is limited to observation roles under control of an international commission.

Oppenheimer Case Has Two Viewpoints

B JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—You could suit yourself about associating with a long-time Communist friend if you worked in a department store. There's no law against it. The boss might fire you if he found out. But you'd still be free to take that chance.

Suppose, though, you were one of the great atomic scientists, working for the government, and carrying around in your head secrets involving national security. Would you then be free to associate with that long-time Communist friend?

That's one of the points in the decision which found Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer loyal but a security risk. Oppenheimer, director of the wartime atom bomb development and a government consultant afterwards on atomic problems was told last December he could no longer have secret information.

Oppenheimer asked for a hearing to clear his name. The five-man Atomic Energy Commission appointed a social, three-year board to consider his case. It did, for weeks. It heard 10 witnesses and read 6,000 pages of testimony and evidence. This week it gave its verdict.

It not only found him to be loyal but said he had a high degree of discretion and a great ability to keep secrets. Nevertheless, the board ruled 21 he should no longer be entrusted with government secrets. In short, it called him a security risk. Oppenheimer has asked the full AEC to review his case and reverse this finding.

Oppenheimer became director of the bomb project in 1942. Before then he associated with Communists for years, attended Communist meetings, married a Communist and had a brother and sister-in-law who were Communists. His wife, brother and sister-in-law said they quit the party before 1941.

Oppenheimer denied he was a member of the Communist party. The board called him a fellow traveler in the years before 1942. Then it told this story:

Haakon Chevalier, friend of Oppenheimer, and identified years ago as a Communist by a California state investigation committee, in 1943 tried to get atomic information out of Oppenheimer for the Russians. Oppenheimer turned him down cold.

Oppenheimer didn't tell government security officers about this until months later, twice lied to them, finally told the full story. In 1950 Chevalier visited Oppenheimer for two days and in 1953 was visited by Oppenheimer and his wife in Paris. The scientist calls Chevalier a friend.

The board said this "is not the kind of thing that our security permits on the part that our security permits on the part of one who customarily has access to information of the highest classification."

The board made this explanation; the government has a security system. The only way in which it can work, and in which the country can be safe, is if everyone like Oppenheimer, with his head full of secrets abides by the rules. No individual can suit himself on how he observes the rules.

There were some other points on which the board questioned Oppenheimer's reliability as a security risk but it summed up this way:

"Beginning with the Chevalier incident, he has repeatedly exercised an arrogant of his own judgment with respect to the loyalty and reliability of other citizens to an extent which has frustrated and at times impeded the workings of the system."

Another ground on which the board considered him a security risk seems far less clear: Oppenheimer, who favored a well-balanced atomic program, joined with others in opposing an all-out effort to make the hydrogen bomb and argued against it in 1949. The board blamed him for not being "enthusiastic" about it after former President Truman made the decision early in 1950 to go ahead with the H-bomb.

This raises a basic question affecting the country's future: How can any scientist be expected ever to give an honest judgment on any thing if, as in the case of Oppenheimer, he may find his judgment used against him?

In their importance to man, grasses rank first in the plant kingdom.

tion today announced position to postal legislation which two months ago was endorsed by the Arkansas Postmasters Association.

James Huie, president of the Little Rock chapter, said the controversial legislation would be beneficial to some postmasters and high-grade postal employees but "it would be harmful to the rank and file postal worker."

Huie said the bill would take from Congress the power of establishing and maintaining a wage structure for postal employees, and place such power in the hands of the Postmaster General.

"This would give unlimited authority to the postmaster general over wages and classification of the worker, with no recourse for the individual," he said.

The association president said 200 chapters of Little Rock's chapter, which constitutes the bulk of postal transport association members in Arkansas, have joined with about 20,000 other association members in opposing the legislation.

Casseroles symbolize woman's reluctance to face the fact that yesterday's roast beef or chicken or lobster or veal or tuna fish is still yesterday's roast beef, etc. now defrocked, sliced up and hidden like a poor relative under a melange of whipped potatoes, noodles or rice.

A woman is simply a grown up girl dreamer. She must still pretend. She rejects repetition as drab. She is still a little girl caught in a Cinderella fantasy. Oh, yes, yesterday's chicken was good, but still it was only chicken. Today, we must have something more exciting. We must mix it with other things, disguise it, and submerge it and out of the pot we will now get eight prancing horses drawing a sparkling gilt carriage which will contain a dashing prince charming who will take us out of all this, give new meaning to our lives, etc.

It is often said—and accurately I suppose—that a housewife, like anybody else, needs to feel creative. But why not act out this urge on something less basic, like marking ash trays or taking up hand weaving or collecting glass miniatures of 18th century poets? Why take it out on the roast beef?

I have often been told by a woman to whom I am related by marriage that casseroles are also a fine way of "stretching" food. And to this, I have often responded in a whisper, of course) that no matter how much you shake it, mix it or assimilate it, you still get only so much roast beef and that much more noodles. Who you kidding?

Economical? I wonder. After you've painted an entirely new background, after you've hired new actors disguised as mushrooms, almonds, cheese or wines, you've got, maybe a show that looks different but it cost just as much and still has only the same amount of ham.

Easier to prepare? I don't know. I've seen an awful lot of pots, an awful lot of slicing and mixing and balancing go into casseroles.

Easier to serve? On this one point, I can't argue. I take the word of experts that all the labor involved in casseroles is involved in the preparation. But once all the working parts have been collected from their separate pots and thrown into the one melting pot to cook, the chef has very little to do. The casserole is then left on its own and requires very little watching. A woman has more time to spend with her guests and accordingly feels less like a second class citizen who has to grab her martini on the run in the kitchen while everyone else is relaxing in the living room.

All right. But then why not serve sandwiches? That gives the cook even more time in the living room. Or, if you must make casseroles, don't make them for your husband. Just serve them for guests you don't expect to entertain again.

Odie Smith Ross was to have life time use of the apartment.

The Supreme Court said Mrs. Ross was entitled to the cash value of her life interest to be deducted from the purchase price of the property.

The court also said that a $3,000 mortgage held by Rich was to be paid out of the purchase price. Difference phases of the involved case had been heard in both Arkansas County Chancery Court and Arkansas Probate Court. The Supreme Court's decision in part affirmed and in part reversed the lower court's respective holdings. The ruling was written by Associate Justice Sam Robinson. Associate Justice Ed McFadden dissented.

A re-allotment of school area in Johnson County was upheld by the Supreme Court.

Rockefeller to Aid Perry Medically

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Perry has been selected to receive a rural medical clinic experiment sponsored by Winthrop Rockefeller.

Dr. Hayden C. Nicholson of the University of Arkansas School of Medicine, said Johnson County was selected because it best fitted the specifications of the experiment.

The county, most part of the United Rural District No. 19, had 5,940 persons in the 1950 census.

Plans call for the clinic to be staffed by a doctor, a technician and a receptionist. The University also will use the clinic as an observation post for rural medicine.

Ozark District Association of another section to the Lamar District, was set aside by the Johnson Circuit Court, which approved other transfers.

Frank J. Hamilton and other dissatisfied school patrons appealed to the Supreme Court, which affirmed the Circuit Court on the counts.

Quick Look at Work of Congress

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is a quick look at what Congress has done in 1954, what it hasn't done, won't do, and may do before the lawmakers go home to face the voters in the November elections.

They want to quit here by July 31, so they can campaign for reelection, but probably won't get away until some time in August. Eisenhower has said he wants his program, or what happens to it in Congress, to be the campaign issue.

His Republicans run Congress. He has leaned over backwards to get along with them. But he has put them on the spot.

Last December he said the Republican party doesn't deserve to retain control of the government until Congress puts through his program. Last week he said he could think of nothing more important to the United States than its enactment.

The margin between Democrats and Republicans in Congress is so close that: 1) none of Eisenhower's program could be passed without some help from Democrats and 2) the Democrats could block passage any time the banded solidly together.

In the House there are only four more Republicans than Democrats. In the Senate the lineup is 48 Democrats, 7 Republicans and 1 Independent, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

So far Congress has passed only six measures which could be considered of major importance:

(1) Joining Canada in the St. Lawrence seaway; (2) a defense pact with South Korea; (3) creating an Air Force academy; (4) extending major excise tax rates and cutting theirs; (5) providing two billion dollars for federal highway construction; (6) increasing the borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corp.

Because the Democrats stuck together, two of Eisenhower's proposals were shelved; revising the Taft-Hartley labor relation law and lowering the voting age to 18.

Last week Congress started rolling toward passage of a wider social security program and the kind of housing program Eisenhower asked for.

The House approved a bill to add almost 10 million people to social security coverage while increasing both the benefits and the tax. The Senate is expected to vote for this too.

Meanwhile, the Senate okayed most of the Eisenhower housing program, including the building of 35,000 public units a year for the next four years continuing government-insured loans on homes, and the use of one billion dollars for slum clearance. The House earlier had knocked out the administration's proposal for 35,000 public housing units a year. There can be no final passage of a housing bill until both House and Senate agree perhaps by compromise on both sides.

Three measures Eisenhower sought have little chance of getting through (1) extension for three years of the reciprocal trade program, (2) flexible farm price support, (3) Hawaiian statehood.

The trade program will probably not be extended beyond a year and in fact Eisenhower has indicated he will be satisfied with that.

Eisenhower insisted again last week he wants the flexible price support system on farm products but that seems out. Hawaiian statehood proposals got tangled with Alaskan statehood proposals. The probable result: Statehood for neither.

Here are some other major items upon which there has been no final action either because only one house, or neither, has approved:

Increasing the limit on the national debt; overhauling the tax laws; easing restrictions on use of atomic materials; a $2-billion-dollar foreign aid program; reinsurance on private health insurance; and an increase in the postal rates

"I guess women think it's fashionable to be late," Ricky said, glancing at his wrist watch.

Mr. Bruce snorted. "That's what they say, my boy. The truth is, they're born without any sense of time at all."

"Dad says Mom thinks time stands still when she's on the telephone."

"Don't mention that instrument to me," Mr. Bruce said, shuddering. "If you ever have any teenage daughters of your own, you'll know what I mean."

Ricky blushed. "I guess some of that's my fault."

"Well, I'd hope she isn't talking to herself. By the way how's the DTA coming?"

"Pretty slow," Ricky said glumly. "We have seven members."

"Jerry Sherm, me and four kids who don't even own cars. They drive the family cars — when they can get them."

"What's your program now?"

"That's what we can't figure out. We don't have enough members to do much of anything but sit around and talk shop."

"You're in the same boat as all the other organizations," Mr. Bruce said. "What to do that will create a little interest and build membership."

"The drag strip would do it," Ricky said. "But the way we're going, it will be a thousand years before we get that."

"You'll have to work toward it. You'll make it. Just don't be discouraged."

"Oh, I'm not, Mr. Bruce," Ricky said. But he was.

"You need something that will focus public attention on your group. A driving team might do it. The Dellville Timing Association Drivers, or something."

"We don't have any place to practice."

"It would be easier to get a place to practice than a driving strip. And a step in the right direction. — I ... Ah, here comes Sharon."

Ricky stood up as Sharon came into the room. He'd expected her to be in a skirt and blouse or slacks. His eyes widened when he saw her in a print dress with a wide belt and full skirt. And she was wearing white sandals with a fairly high heel. She had combed her hair back up, to be cool, and Ricky, who had been expecting an informal girl was suddenly struck dumb at the sight of the beautiful girl who was to be his date.

"Approve?" Sharon asked Ricky her smile teasing a little.

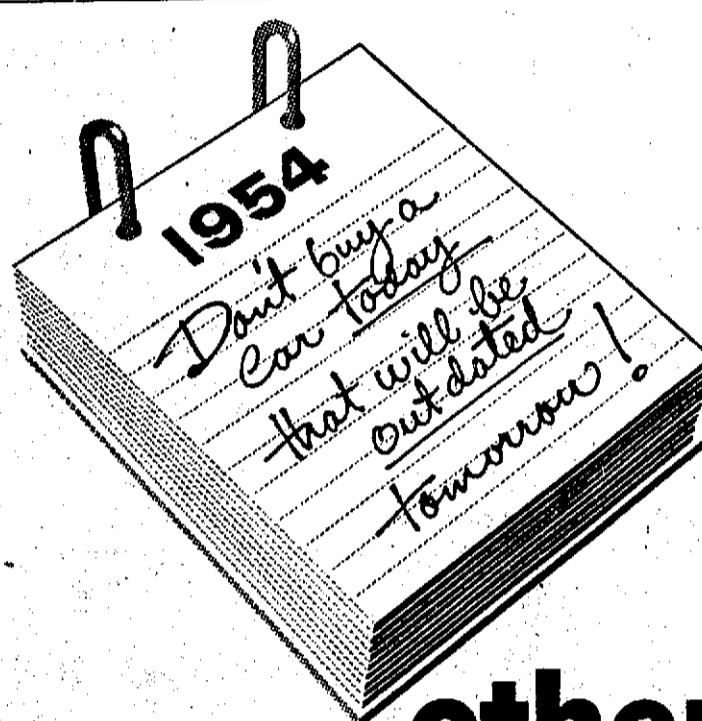

"I guess I do," he answered awkwardly. "You look real nice."

"Well, kids," Mr. Bruce said. "I won't insult you by telling you to be careful. Have a good time."

"Thanks," Ricky said. "We will. And be drag."

"You can drive in high," Mr. Bruce said dryly.
